Commodore Schley Examines the Harbor Defenses of Santiago.

MORRO I NOT DEMOLISHED

Should It Be Necessary, Its Strength Could With Comparative Ease Be Re-established-Two Ships Can Be Saved-Our Fleet Might Have Safely Entered the Harbor.

Santiago, July 19.-Morro Castle, from the heights of which the Spanish emblem was lowered on Sunday morning to give place to the "Star Spangled Banner" of America, is not very seriously damaged by the bombardment it has received, and can with comparatively little work be put in good fighting trim again for American use if necessary. Only one bastion was knocked to pieces, while the queer little sentry boxes, dating back to the sixteenth century, escaped almost intact. Not a gun is mounted within or on Morro's walls. All the batteries, masked and open, dwindled in their terror-inspiring qualities as the inspection grow Crowning the hill on the west side of the entrance were the six-inch rapid-fire guns from the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes. Below, on brick foundation on the western shore of the entrance, were some revolving guns. These were the ones which poured such a bitter fire into the Merrimac. Directly east of Morro Castle, on the crest of the plateaulike cliff, were six big guns, one or two of which were dismounted. The Estrella Battery and a small neighbor further in showed no guns.

On the inside of the slope and hill to the westward some hastily constructed cossemates were seen, into which the Spanish gunners retired when our ships opened fire.

At Punta Gorda there were two 4-inch At Punta Gorda there were two 4-inch guns, one above the other, and neither protected by even sand or earth. These commanded the harbor entrance pretty well, but they could have been silenced by one well-directed heavy shell.

Commodore Schley has expressed the opinion that our fleet could have entered the harbor of Santiago without much him the them; increase might have difficulty, though ingress might have been stopped by the explosion of the mines shiking the leading ship. All of these mines have now been expoded, and Lieuts, Hobson and Palmer, who entered the harbor after the surrender Sunday morning, going as far as the firing station of the mines, felt convinced that they were not so formidable as had been expected.

Just after the old cathedral bell in Santingo tolled the hour of noon on Sunday Commodore Schley, with Capt. Cook. of the Brooklyn; Lleut. J. H. Sears, the flag lleutenant, and Lleut. B. W. Wells, the flag secretary, went into the harbor on a steam launch to make a close ob-servation of the forts and batteries. Commodore Schley's party first steam-ed around the wreck of the Reina Merceed around the wreck of the Reina Merce-des, which lies with her bow pointed to-ward the city. She has a list to star-board, and rests on a reef near the foot of Morro cliff. The cruiser is sunk to the upper deck, on which one 6-inch gun remained. One torpedo tube is loaded, and the auxiliary battery seems in place. Evidently the crew of the Reina Merce-des left her in a hurry. There are great gaps in her sides, showing where two 12 and two 13-inch shells had struck her.

About 800 yards ahead of the Reina Mercedes, and almost in line with her, is the wreck of the Merrimac, lying in six fathoms of water and on the very edge of the channel. Had not the current swung the ship alongside instead of athwart the channel, the latter would have been well blocked. Assistant Naval Constructor Hobson was hunting for a four-fathom spot, and only missed it by a few hundred yards.

At the firing stations on the west side, which Commodore Schley inspected in per-son, the American party met a Spanish artillery captain, who was courteous, out gloomy. Commodore Schley was his own interpreter, and advised the officer, with the few men under his command, to go up to the city and surrender as quickly as

When the Spanish captain was asked to point out the route to the 6-inch battery of the houses and offices of subscribers on the west hill, he said there was not and explained that the way to get there steep, rocky and difficult ground. was learned later, was a little fiction of the Spaniard, whose Castilian pride revolted at allowing the Americans to obtain a full view of the damage they

Naval officers believe that both the Cristobal Colon and the Spanish flagship, the Infanta Maria Teresa, can be saved. The flagship certainly can, as she has floated off the reef on which she was stranded. Her armament is in fairly good condition. So far as the Cristobal Colon is concerned, much depends upon the weather. A heavy storm might drive her so high on a coral reef that she could never be floated again.

Hechts' Rebuilding Sale.

Here are 4 lots of Summer suits you've heard about.

Everybody is talking of Hechts' rebuilding sale and Hechts' bar-gains. When we put on sale these four lots of ladies' Summer suits at such ridiculously low prices we struck the cord of popularity. You can see yourself how we have reduced prices. Former values weren't a bit too much for them. Hundreds of these same suits were sold at these same former prices, and buyers counted that they got a bargain in every instance. But now we've cut them down to nearly half what they were, and the need for them now couldn't be greater.

A MARINE CASE IN COURT.

Sallors on Trial Charged With Disobedience to Orders.

The case of the United States against Carl I. Elkman, John Ereckson, Thom as W. Roper, and Allen E. Anderson seamen employed on the coasting schooner James Bovee, Jr., who were charged with violating the marine law, in disobeying a command of their chief officer, came up for a hearing today in criminal court, No. 1, Justice Hagner presiding. The schooner James Boyce, Jr., was dock ed at the Thirty-second Street wharf, Georgetown, on Sunday, July 10, and on the day following the accused were arrested on complaint of her chief officer, William L. Tilton. The disobedience of orders of which the seamen are accused consisted in refusing to tar the rigging of the vessel with their bare hands.

The accused were represented by Mr. Thomas L. Taylor, who moved to quash the indictment, alleging that it did not set out a specific charge against the prisoners.

After making a critical examination of the papers in the case, Justice Hagner said that the proceedings were somewhat irregular, inasmuch as the complaint did not plainly set forth the offense with which the accused was charged. He therefore ordered that the Gov-ernment be permitted to amend the com-plaint, which was done by Assistant District Attorney Shillington, and the trial was proceeded with.

The cases were separated, and Thomas W. Roper was called for trial first. His counsel did not demand a trial by jury, and the case was heard by Justice Hag-

The first witness sworn for the Government was William L. Tilton, the cap-tain of the schooner James Boyce, jr., who testified that it is the custom for des left her in a hurry. the aid of brushes or rags. His testi-mony was corroborated by several other captains of coasting schooners. The defendant Roper, when put upon the stand, denied that he had disobeyed any order of Captain Tilton, in reference any order of Captain 11100, in reference to tarring the rigging of the schooner. His testimony was substantiated by the other seamen, who are also accused of dis-obeying the captain by refusing to tar the rigging of the James Boyce, jr.

TELEPHONE SUITS

William Veerhoff Files a Bill of Injunction Against the Company.

The number of suits against the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company to compel it either to place instruments in, or to prevent it from taking them out increases daily. Last week three suits were filed against the company, one a mandamus proceed-ing and the other bils of injunction. Yesterday Mr. William G. Veerh who does business at No. 1217 F Street, filed the fourth suit against the company, asking that it be enjoined from remov-ing its telephone instrument from his premises. The complaint alleges that he is a subscriber for the telephone service of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company in the District of Columbia, and that he has regularly paid the rental for the use of the machines and appliances of the company. On July 9 he notified the company that he intended to terminate the old contract and make a under the terms of the act of new one under the terms of the act of Congress of June 39, 1886, and in good faith tendered its proper official $12.50, the rate established by law, as the amount for one-quarter's rent. This, he said, the company refused to accept and it now threatens to remove its telephone instru-ment from his premises.
